WEEKLY ARIZONA CITIZEN OLD FRIENDS AND NEW ONES

BY WM. GILL MILLS, LL D.

The scenes of life are changing As clouds that drift away, And men are ever ranging, Like birds from to bough to spray. These changes bring us new friends, With breathings warm and bold; But while the new are true friends,

We'll not forget the old. The friends that changes send us, With changes off are gone, As shadows that attend us,

Or leave us, with the sun. Oh, give me those with true bearts E wouther warm or cold; And the igh we cling to new hearts, We'll wet forget the old.

'Tis well, thro' lile's revealing. To gather friendly hearts, And cherish every feeling That happiness imparts;

But few among the many Will keep a faithful hold; Then, if we cling to any, We'll not forget the old.

Those volces seem so pleasant That cheered us long ago; Their sympathy as present They lovingly bestow.

Oh, those are tried and true friends, Whose hearts will ne'er grow cold: Then, while we love our new friends, We'll not forget the old.

More land is being settled upon in Pima county now than ever before. A number of tracts of land have been located by white men, who are going to dlg wells and raise the water to the surface with wind mills, and if they find that it will work, in time they will use steam power. There are many rich spots in this section of Arizona which may be made valuable in Forage—Birley, Bran, Corn and Hay; Straaw

Wrunderstand Mr. Fuller is making some important improvements at Auga Caltente. The water of these springs is said to be as good as the best, and we have no doubt but Mr.

Fuller is making some important improvements at the foregoing, at the office of the Chief Quartermester of the Department.

Froposals will also be received at the office best, and we have no doubt but Mr.
Fuller will have plenty of occupants for all the room he may provide. The location is healthful and so near Tucson that almost daily communication is maintained, thus making it an easy place of access.
